

R E P O R T

OF THE

REGISTRAR OF FRIENDLY SOCIETIES IN IRELAND

(Pursuant to 18 &amp; 19 Vict. c. 63, s. 45).

FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31 DECEMBER 1868.

THE Registrar has certified during the past year the rules of 16 new sickness and burial societies, and 29 amendments to rules; also the rules of one burial society and three amendments. He has also certified three amendments to the rules of building societies, and four amendments to loan societies.

Six co-operative societies, with limited liability, have been formed under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1867.

Two societies have deposited their rules under the 44th section of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63.

Three amendments to the rules of annuity societies have been certified; four treasurers' bonds have been deposited with the Registrar, and he has received 71 notices of the appointment of new trustees, and 28 notices of change in place of meeting.

Two societies have been legally dissolved by the Registrar, and notice given in the "Dublin Gazette"; and he has received notice of six illegal dissolutions.

One loan society has been certified under the authorisation of the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

The foregoing figures show a considerable falling off from previous years in the numbers of new societies established in Ireland, but the Registrar is of opinion that this is partly caused by the increasing stability of the existing societies; but there is no doubt that the decrease is also to be attributed to the present state of the law relating to friendly societies, and the want of any effectual check upon the officers or upon the members themselves in the expenditure of the funds. It is very difficult to detect, and still more so to get legal proof of breaches of the law and misappropriation of funds, and the Registrar is of opinion that until some effective supervision of the funds and audit of the accounts of friendly societies have been established by law, that there will not be any great increase in the number of societies formed in Ireland.

The Registrar was enabled this year, by the kindness of Mr. Tidd Pratt, to circulate in Ireland the form of return issued to the English friendly societies, and he sent out 424 forms, and has received 326 returns, but he regrets to have to state that the result has not been satisfactory; the returns have in very few instances been correctly filled, and it is extremely difficult to extract from them any useful or reliable information. The practice of dividing at Christmas the entire funds in hand (save a few pounds which are retained in bank to meet current liabilities) seems to prevail as extensively as ever, and the Registrar considers that until societies are permitted to establish, under the Friendly Societies Acts, a distinct fund as a savings fund for division, it will be almost impossible to put a stop to the present system.

The state of the law relating to building societies continues to create a good deal of confusion. The repeal by the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63, of the clause which extended the provisions of the Friendly Societies Acts (passed subsequent to the Building Societies Act) to benefit building societies, has restored, as regards these societies, the old law, which required rules, &c. to be deposited with the Clerk of the Peace, and a double depository has thus been created: the rules prior to 1855 being in the custody of the Registrar of Friendly Societies, and those since that date being with the Clerk of the Peace. It seems very desirable that benefit building societies should be regulated by a statute relating solely to the objects for which they are established.

The Registrar has had several applications to certify the rules of mutual loan fund societies, and in many cases the applicants have applied for the sanction of the Secretary of State for the Home Department, but the Registrar has been unable to recommend, in the present state of the law, the establishment of such societies.

In connection with loan fund societies the Registrar has to report the only case of issuing fictitious rules which has come under his notice since his appointment.

In the month of June 1868 a complaint was made to him that a society, styled the Commercial Loan Fund Society, improperly detained a sum of money belonging to a member who had given notice of withdrawal; and a printed rule book, purporting to be the rules of "The Commercial Loan Fund Society, at 40, William-street, in the city of Dublin," was produced to him, the certificate to which was dated the 13th April 1863, and purported to be signed by the Registrar. Upon examining the rules certified upon that date, it was found that no such society had ever been certified, but that the rules of a loan fund society, with a different name, had been certified, and the spurious rules had been copied from those of the certified society, merely changing the name; and upon application to the secretary the Registrar received a reply from him informing him that the Commercial Loan Fund Society had ceased to exist since Christmas 1867, but giving no information as to the certificate to the rules or the probability of payment of the claims of the creditors.

The Registrar at once took steps to ascertain under what circumstances his name had been affixed to these rules, and had obtained the necessary information, when the person who could prove the offence died, and he has not as yet been able to obtain sufficient evidence to enable him to institute proceedings. There is a Commercial Loan Fund Society, duly certified, in Dublin, which has no connection with the above society.

The Registrar has been applied to to certify the rules of branches established in Ireland of societies legally certified in England and Scotland; but he has declined to do so, except as distinct societies whose funds should remain in Ireland under the control of the members there. He finds, however, that several societies, both in England and Scotland, have established branches in Ireland, and advertise themselves as duly certified societies in Ireland, which they are not.

The Registrar has also been asked to certify trade rules, and is of opinion that some protection is necessary for the funds of trade societies similar to that given by the 44th section of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63, to societies established for legal purposes.

A great number of societies have invested their funds in the Post Office Savings Bank, and the members seem now to prefer that mode of investment.

In conclusion, the Registrar begs to express a hope that, during next Session, the law relating to benefit societies will be placed upon a more satisfactory footing.

Dated this 10th day of August 1869.

The Registrar of Friendly Societies in Ireland.
